THE PURPOSE OF THE SUBJECT, LEARNING OUTCOMES:

The Integrated Marketing Communication (hereinafter: IMC) course aims to provide students with the knowledge and understanding of the main issues related to the planning, implementation and evaluation of communication campaigns, and to identify the most typical strategies for IMC campaigns. By completing the course, students will be able to use marketing communication tools not only at a theoretical level but also at a practical level, and to plan and design advertising and marketing campaigns effectively, and to analyse and evaluate them, e.g. by using SWOT analysis, Kotler's 5M, CSM, 7P, 7C and the Public Relations orientations.

SUMMARY OF THE CONTENT OF THE SUBJECT

During the semester, students will learn the main features of Integrated Marketing Communication, the rules of its development, the most important tools and elements, and learn how to use them. In the first part of the course, the necessity, conceptual approaches, levels and objectives of communication will be presented in detail. Closely linked to this is the second major topic, which deals with the importance of hierarchy of effects models and the structure and design of advertising and marketing campaigns. The final part of the course will focus on the strategic planning steps of communication, such as: advertising campaign, message, media, measurement, brief, and the application of 7P and 7C analysis. By the end of the semester, students will have a comprehensive understanding of the IMC, which will enable them to design the key elements of a more simple campaign and to analyse them using the 7P and 7C methods.

STUDENT'S TASKS AND PLANNED LEARNING ACTIVITIES:

Students should first learn about the main purpose of the IMC, the principles of its operation and the methods used to set it up. After learning about the different strategic plans and campaigns, students will also be able to express their views in a short marketing discussion based on pre-defined topics. To successfully complete the course, students will be required to write two written exams.
